Introducing: The Software Development Life Cycle

There are more apps than there are people on the planet. Let that sink in. And each iOS, Android, Watch, TV application represents a product line, a business backed by a system or structure of multiple pieces working together to support itself.

Chisel Tech isn't exactly your usual mobile app tech co. We use the software development life cycle and the principles of SCRUM to analyze, design and create the business you deserve to run.

Our website does just that. From onset, we hold your hand and walk you through the entire SDLC so that you not only have a company, but a brand you can be proud of.

Our team has worked with and created businesses for great people all over the world and a few reputable ones you may know like Apple, Google, the NFL and CNBC.

We're excited to partner with you and can't wait to see the NEXT BIG THING you create!
